Medical English Course

Gulf Language School at North American University offers international medical professionals an opportunity to improve their English during weekday and weekend classes, in 16-week sessions.

This course is designed to help students communicate more effectively and confidently in English. The course addresses improvement in oral skills needed for healthcare situations.

Students also have opportunities to develop their medical field vocabulary, writing and grammar skills.

In addition, participants will practice pronunciation and doctor-patient interactions through pair and group exercises. This course is limited to students whose first language is not English.
